Oct. 26. The Governor issued the following Proclamation: to wit:

Proclamation By the Governor of the State of Missouri.—

The end of another year is approaching. The gladsome Seasons of opening buds, of refreshing Showers, of genial Sunshine, and of golden, waving fields of ripening Cereals, have again been enjoyed and are past. The husbandman is now gathering the rich Stores with which a beneficent Providence is wont to bless the labors of our most highly favored people. Abundant Harvests have rewarded the toils of the Farmer, and success the honest and earnest efforts of all Classes. Health, on the main, has given firmness to our footsteps and vigor to the ultimation of our purposes: and peace, has implanted confidence to our numerous enterprises and enhanced our blessings with the lull of security, and the beatitudes of contentment. Heaven has showered its noblest gifts upon us, Religious freedom, Civil Liberty, and the protection of individual rights, are the common heritage of all. Material wealth, intellectual attainments, and the rewards of virtue, are offered alike to all, and they have not, (nowhere) in vain, who have sought aright. It is proper, that we should recognize the hand, which has so bountifully provided for our happiness.

It is right, that we should acknowledge our manifold obligations to the giver of all we possess and enjoy. It is our highest privilige to cherish a sincere gratitude to Him, in whom we live and move, and have our being. I have deemed it proper therefore, in conformity with a custom, which, with a wise regard for our highest interests, may ever be observed, to name a day on which the people of our state, may, with one accord, decently offer public thanksgiving, to the great Source of life and its blessings.

In considering the day most appropriate, the 28th of November, is suggested as eminently suitable. On that day 1783, the last armed foe of American Independence, evacuated the enemy's fortifications and ceased to tread American soil. On that day, the complete and perfect independence of the American 1858 nation was consummated, and Liberty, civil and religious, unawed and undisputed, was proclaimed as the universal heritage of all then sheltered by the American eagle, or who might thereafter, seek an assylum under his ever expanding wings. On that day for the first time, undisturbed by the representative of despotism, and unrestrained by the terrors of any external foe, the Fathers of American Freedom, shouted from the hill-tops the glad tidings, that universal religious tolerance, civil liberty, and the political equality of our race, regardless of the Land of birth, is established, and shall forever have an abiding place, upon the earth; that henceforth, the American Continent should be an asylum for the oppressed.—"The Land of the free." What day, so appropriate, for the outpourings of the gratitude of the American people.

In view, therefore, of the many causes of gratitude, which we continually enjoy, and of the occasion, which renders eminently appropriate the day designated, I, Robert M. Stewart, Governor of the State of Missouri, do by this Proclamation, recommend to the people of this State, that they observe, Thursday, the 25th day of November next, as a fitting day for Thanksgiving to Almighty God, and in humble prayer to him, for a continuance of his blessings.

In testimony whereof I have hereto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal, of the State to be affixed. Done at the City of Jefferson, this the Twenty Sixth day of October A.D. 1858. Of the Independence of the United States the Eighty third, and of the State of Missouri the Thirty Eighth.

1859 Nov 21st The Governor issued the following proclamation.

Gratitude is one of the noblest impulses of the human heart. Ever, spontaneously dependent upon reciprocal services and kindly [illegible] of his fellow-man, can exhibit no emotion more commendable than that arising from a just appreciation of Heaven's voluntary offerings of [illegible] sympathy. Duly estimating the social blessings [illegible] him in his ever-changing circumstances, [illegible] his relations to society impose, are [illegible] in fervent efforts to contribute to the [illegible] of human happiness, and in a ready response to the calls of [illegible] pertain to man relations and obligations [illegible] in the scale of being, and is [illegible] those of the social sphere. For all that [illegible] he has, all that he enjoys, and all [illegible] to, he is indebted to a Source independent [illegible] himself—a Power Supreme, an Infinite-wise, a Creative Energy whose beneficence is universal, extending to the least particle of life.

[illegible] Cause of all that is, we [illegible] indebted [illegible] numerous benefactions showered upon us [illegible] past year—the continuance of life, the [illegible] of health, the perpetuity of civil and religious [illegible], abundant harvests, the success of [illegible] pursuits, commercial prosperity, and the [illegible] that only the Wisdom of Omniscience, only the munificent hand of Omnipotence could bestow. Thus, immeasurably greater [illegible] obligations to [illegible] than to [illegible] made to the [illegible] individual [illegible] we [illegible]

ing the inestimable blessings of a government founded upon the intelligence and virtue of a free people, it becomes us to recur to the events incident to the achievement of our freedom, that, in some measure, we may duly estimate its cost, and realize the value attached to it by those who pledged "their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" in its behalf. We may well recur to the principles of their struggle for liberty, when the people of Virginia, cherishing the tenderest sympathy and brotherhood for the [illegible] New England Colonies, after solemnly [illegible] the [illegible] act to which they were [illegible], appointed, in manifestation of that [illegible] fasting and prayer." With the liveliest feelings of gratitude may we recall the memorable [illegible] December, 1783, when the venerated patriot Washington, with an army "reduced to three thousand men, [illegible] clothes or camp equipage, half [illegible], dishearted by misfortune, [illegible] all," at night successfully [illegible] saving this remnant [illegible] shortly after, [illegible] and the [illegible] an appropriate [illegible] of [illegible] a [illegible] patriot [illegible] able attachment to the Union as the main pillar in the edifice of independence, the support of your tranquility at home, your peace abroad; of your safety, of your prosperity and liberty."

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of State to be affixed, at the City of Jefferson, this 21st day of November, A. D.
